

The Worst Of The Pacific War Is Yet To Come; Back 'Em Up With War Bonds

U. S. Sub Runs Aground While Chasing Japs; Saved By Yanks

(Editor's note: The army, navy and air force all have their heroes and they are known to the world. Some of the most brilliant work of the Pacific wars has been carried out by American submarines, but their stories have been secrets tucked away in the navy's voluminous files. Now a part of that story may be told. This is the last of a series on America's underwater heroes.)

By MURLIN SPENCER

Pearl Harbor, June 18 (AP)—The American submarine U. S. S. Dart sank a large Japanese cruiser and damaged a second to strike the first blows in the now historic second naval battle of the Philippines.

Then the Dart, in pursuit of the great Japanese fleet, ran aground on a reef to set the stage for one of the great rescues of the war.

Commanded by Comdr. David H. McClintock, Marquette, Mich., the Dart was on patrol off the Philippines when she picked up the Japanese task force of battleships, cruisers and destroyers heading for a show-down battle with the American fleet.

McClintock lay in wait for them and when they came into position he fired his torpedoes, selecting two cruisers which were in the best position for attack.

Sight of Lifetime

"After firing at the second cruiser I whipped the periscope back to see the sight of a lifetime," the veteran submariner said. "The cruiser—the first one attacked—was so close that all of her could not be seen at once with the periscope.

"She was a mass of billowing black smoke from her number one turret to her stern. Bright orange flames shot out from the side along the main deck from the bow to the after turret. The cruiser was already going down by the bow, which was dipping under.

"She was definitely finished." There was no time to determine the fate of the second cruiser. Angered by the submarine that dared take on an entire Japanese task force, the enemy warships moved in, blasting with their depth charges.

The sounds of the explosions were coupled also with the sounds of a ship breaking up and McClintock hoped fervently that it was the second cruiser.

THREE OUT FOR TOWN POST ON STICKER DRIVE

The office of burgess of Gettysburg, which nobody apparently wanted in the spring during the petition filing period, today had become the goal of three "sticker" campaigns for the major party nominations at Tuesday's primaries.

This morning "stickers" appeared for both Burgess Fred G. Pfeffer, whose four-year term as burgess expires at the end of this year, and for C. A. Heiges, Buford avenue, Pfeffer's predecessor in office.

Burgess Pfeffer did not swerve from his earlier statement that he will not wage a campaign for reelection and explained that the "stickers" did not come out at his direction but on the initiative of friends who want him to serve for another term.

Inspired By Friends

Mr. Heiges, who has been burgess of Gettysburg for a total of 12 years in the past, said he knew nothing of the "stickers" until they appeared this morning. He said at noon today that he understood both Republicans and Democrats are handling the "stickers" and added that he will accept the nomination and will campaign for election in November if he is nominated.

The former burgess also said that friends had urged him in the spring to run for the office and had circulated nominating petitions which he would not permit them to file.

On Saturday, Charles B. Dougherty, former manager of the Gettysburg Ice and Storage company, announced he is campaigning for both party nominations for burgess by the use of "stickers" in the voting on Tuesday. The ballots on Tuesday will not have any names printed on them for the office of burgess.

Both Pfeffer and Heiges are Republicans.

The office pays $45 per month.

ONE WAR BOND QUOTA "OVER"; E SALES SHORT

The most encouraging news in the "Mighty Seventh" war loan campaign was given out this morning by Edmund W. Thomas, chairman of the Adams County War Finance Committee, when he made public bond sale figures for the county as released today by the Federal Reserve Bank, of Philadelphia.

Sale of all types of bonds to individuals in Adams county, as of the close of business last Friday, June 15, total $1,230,000. Of this amount the official figures, as of the same date, on the sale of E bonds to individuals total $448,762.50. This leaves an unsold balance of E bonds to individuals of a few dollars over $250,000 to reach the county quota of $700,000.

The quota of all types of bonds to individuals of $760,000 is oversubscribed by approximately $20,000.

The Adams county quota of $2-110,000 for all types of bonds to everybody was officially announced by the State War Finance Committee this morning. Sale of bonds to others in the county, not including individuals, officially begins today and Chairman Thomas said that every indication points to the fact that this part of the county quota will be oversubscribed before the close of the drive July 7.

Thus Adams county is placed in an excellent position of again reaching its individual and overall quotas before the "Mighty Seventh" war loan campaign is concluded.

Chairman Thomas said:

"Adams county will reach its quota of war bond sales. Of that I feel confident. This county has never failed to reach its goal in the six previous drives, and I do not believe that the people will fail in this effort. We have never let our boys down and I know we will not let them down in this drive. It is vastly more important that we reach our quota in this campaign than in any of the previous six bond drives. Our chief concern now is the shortage of E bond sales. We need slightly more than $250,000 in sales of this type of bonds to reach our goal and I am appealing to the people of the county to do their utmost to help us keep our county slate clean."

To the soldier's mind, the general declared in an address prepared for his appearance before a joint session of Congress and the Supreme court, "the problems of peace can be no more difficult than the one you had to solve more than three years ago, and which, in one battle area, has now been brought to a successful conclusion.

"He passionately believes that with the same determination, the same optimistic resolution and the same mutual consideration, among Allies that marshalled in Europe forces capable of crushing what had been the greatest war machine of history the problems of peace can and must be met."

Sure of Victory
Referring to the Pacific war, General Eisenhower said:

"Speaking for the American men and women I have been so honored to command x x x in our minds and hearts there is no slightest doubt that our people's spirit of determination, which has buoyed us up and driven us forward in Europe, will continue to fire this nation through the ordeals of battle yet to come. Though we dream of return to our loved ones, we are ready, as we have always been, to do our duty to our country. No matter what it may be."

General Eisenhower made these other points:

The late President and Prime Minister Churchill were "two God-given men" to whom the world owes lasting obligation. In Churchill, Roosevelt "had a worthy partner, who had led his country through its blackest hour in 1940."

British and Americans "forgot differences in customs and methods—even national prejudice—in their devotion to a common cause."

Tribute To Russia
The campaigns of the Red Army, crushing all resistance in the East, played a decisive part in the defeat of Germany.

The banners of victory cannot hide from sight these sacrifices in which victory has been bought.

"The hard task of a commander is to send men into battle knowing some of them—often many—must be killed or wounded in order that necessary missions may be achieved. It is a soul killing duty.

"My sorrow is not only for the fine young lives lost or broken, but it is equally for the parents, the wives and the friends who have been bereaved. The price they pay is possibly the greatest for the victory won. The blackest of their grief can be relieved only by the faith that all this shall not happen again!"

Remnants Of Japs On Okinawa Are Cut Into Two Segments

General Ike Is Home For Wide Acclaim

Washington, June 18 (AP)—General Dwight D. (Ike) Eisenhower returned triumphantly today to a grateful America to receive from his countrymen a conquering hero's tumultuous acclaim.

President Truman's own sleek C-54, one of the four big transports, bringing the general and his party home from the wars, landed on Washington's national airport at 11:11 a. m. Eastern War Time. Thousands of necks craned in a jammed Washington as the planes, escorted by Fighters, roared over the capital at 11:08 a. m., enroute to the airport.

Cries of "Ike Ike Ike"—a word now known in all languages, meaning fighting general—rang from hundreds of throats as the modest, 54-year-old son of a Kansas farm family stepped from the huge flying ship. He flashed his famous grin in response.

Greeted By Wife

General George C. Marshall, chief of staff, and Eisenhower's petite and vivacious wife rushed to meet him as the door of his plane opened.

A flight of more than 30 bombers and fighters—symbolic of the might that vanquished German and Italian arms—escorted the Allied supreme commander's plane from the Atlantic coast to the airfield in Virginia just across the Potomac from Washington.

Mrs. Eisenhower ran to the general as he came down the steps from the plane and embraced and kissed him.

Eisenhower then snapped to a salute as an 86-piece Army band struck up with martial music.

Eisenhower wore a light summer uniform. On his breast were numerous ribbons telling the graphic story of the campaigns he led through north Africa, Sicily, Italy, France and Germany to the very gates of Berlin.

"Victory" Drive
After the greetings for Eisenhower and his men, the general began an eight mile "victory" drive over Memorial bridge along bunting and flag-bedecked streets lined with hundreds of thousands of parents, wives, brothers, sisters and friends of the men he led in battle.

With the general were 53 fellow soldiers—from a private first class to generals—who fought with him.

LIBRARY BOARD MEETING

The June meeting of the board of directors of the Adams County Free Library association will be held this evening at 8 o'clock at the court house.

By ROBBIN COONS

Guam, June 18 (AP)—The thinning Japanese garrison on Southern Okinawa was cut into two segments today, most of the enemy forces were retreating from the Yaeju plateau and those in the rear were hammered by 200 massed American guns.

At least one enemy leader, Adm. Minoru Ota, naval base force commander, killed himself. His body, with throat slit, was found in an elaborate underground command post.

The Japanese were dying at the rate of 1,600 a day, said Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announcing 12,756 had been slain in eight days, swelling to 80,459 the number killed since the invasion began April 1.

The estimated 8,000 to 12,000 Japanese still fighting were falling back behind "Last-Stand" ridge at the southern edge of the plateau.

Some of them apparently tried to reform near Makabe on the western side of the plateau and everything up to eight-inch howitzers slammed into them simultaneously.

Mop Up Peninsula

The Sixth Marine Division, finished mopping up on Oruku peninsula where Ota's body was found, joined the final battle and it was this outfit that lopped off one enemy force.

The Marines attacked on the west flank and cut off the Japanese near Mezado, northwest of Makabe and less than three miles from Okinawa's southern tip.

The Japanese made no attempt to break out of the encirclement, apparently resigned to fight and die where they were. More than half of "Hari Kari Mesa"—the name given to Yaeju plateau by American troops—was in the hands of Lt. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner's U. S. Tenth Army.

The last three important heights, commanding all the less than eight square miles of the island in which the enemy is cornered, were seized over the week-end.

Suicide Attacks

Over the week-end, the Japanese resumed kamikaze air attacks on American shipping in Okinawan waters. Adm. Chester W. Nimitz' communique admitted one light unit was sunk yesterday.

American fighters and torpedo bombers hit back with a three-hour attack on the Amami Island group, 120 miles north of Okinawa.

Other warplanes dumped nearly 10 tons of bombs on the Japanese on Okinawa, seared them with rockets and machinegunned them.

Nimitz said 80,459 Japanese had been killed since the Americans invaded the island April 1. Prisoners numbered 1,680 but they were coming in more slowly than front dispatches indicated a few days ago.

Last figure given for American ground force casualties was 5,332 soldiers and marines killed or missing, and 21,343 wounded as of May 24.

SAILOR HELD IN CAR THEFT

Seaman First Class Robert Pink, 20, St. Louis, Mo., an alleged Navy deserter, is being held by borough police in connection with a stolen car belonging to the Rev. W. James Emmis, Selville, Del., after being found asleep in the car Sunday morning.

The car which was parked on Fifth street was reported to borough police by Walter Crouse, and upon investigation Seaman Pink was discovered asleep in the vehicle.

The car had been reported stolen five days ago from Pikesville, Md., by the Rev. Mr. Emmis who stated that he had picked up Pink, who was hitchhiking, in Florida and driven to Pikesville with him as a passenger. The Rev. Emmis stated that the car contained four suits of clothes, a portable typewriter, a table model radio, several blankets and possessed a spare tire all of which were missing at the time the car was picked up.

According to Chief of Borough Police Glenn Guise, Pink left Pier 67 at New York, a navy reassignment center, May 1, and had been severely burned about the feet while on foreign service with the navy.

SOVIET RUSSIA PRIZE ENIGMA AT CONFERENCE

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

Soviet Russia, marching up the hill and then down again, continues as the prize enigma at San Francisco and in Europe. Trying to locate her position is like trying to put the little drops of mercury in the proper spots of the old-time puzzle boxes.

No country is so outspoken about the affairs of others. Hardly a country but has received her advice about affairs which once were termed domestic, although it is true that now there is hardly anything without international implications.

Yet Russia declines to accept a charter providing for discussion of "any matter within the sphere of international relations" and wishes the assembly to consider only matters "relating to the maintenance of international peace and security."

Divergent Views
The latter phrase admittedly is broader, but since everything involved in the former is a potential factor in the latter, it is not clear why anyone in a sincere and determined search for peace should object.

Those who see every Russian move as something sinister probably will jump to the conclusion that she is seeking to prevent assembly discussion of the cases of Yugoslavia, Romania, Poland, Czechoslovakia and others which certainly involve the international sphere but which, since none of these countries are in any position to declare war, do not actually, at the moment, involve peace.

But others say Russia does desire peace sincerely. They will merely put this new contention down as another inexplicable move on Moscow's part, to which they expect to find the answer later.

This also applies to the latest moves regarding Poland, where Russia chooses the very time of consultations regarding the Polish government to bring to trial 16 Poles whose mere arrest caused a breakdown in negotiations only a few weeks ago.

U.S. Might Look Back
A close observer of the San Francisco conference recently reported that the leading delegates liked the Russians, were not mad at them, but just had a terrible feeling of frustration when it came to understanding their methods of what they really wanted.

There may be something to the contention that Russia has not yet "grown up" in international outlook, is actually not very well aware of the reaction some of her actions are bound to get abroad.

However, she shows signs of increasing attention to criticism. If this means she is becoming aware of the necessity of understanding the outside world, as it is becoming aware of the necessity of understanding her, progress is being made.

In the meantime America may maintain a better balance on the subject by considering that the United States of today might well be confused if it were standing off watching the United States of the Mexican War or Nicaraguan occupation days or, more pertinently, of 1919-20.

SELMAR W. HESS

mental loan machinery operates for veterans. "I filled out two sets of papers and then waited for two months and the loan was made," he said adding that there was little "red tape" involved in getting the government guarantee for his loan from the local bank.

Hess recently received a medical discharge from the air corps. He received a head injury in February, 1944, when he was forced to "bail out" of a burning plane in a flight from an army base in Massachusetts. Hess does not know how he was hurt. His last recollection of the flight was of leaving the burning ship through the bomb bay.

He entered the service on August 25, 1942, and was discharged on March 20 of this year. He received his basic training at the Augusta (Ga.) Army Air Base.

The new Hess home is located along the road leading from Barlow to the Hoffman orphanage. It is being purchased from Floyd Yingling. The transfer of title to the property has been recorded at the court house.

Graduates From Armored School

Fort Knox, Ky. (Special)—Another class of skilled tank mechanics has been graduated from the Armored School.

Graduates included Pvt. Charles D. Rebert, whose wife resides on Gettysburg R. 2.

During their training in the school's tank department the soldier students worked with the same tools issued to field crews and under the same conditions they are likely to encounter in the field. They studied the mechanisms of the various tanks, from track to turret, learning how to keep them roaring into combat.

EMPLOYERS OF CHILDREN TO ATTEND CLINIC

Employers of Gettysburg and vicinity, who are planning to use high school students in their establishments during the summer vacation period, today were urged by Henry W. Garvin, president of the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce, to attend the child labor clinic next Monday evening at 8 o'clock in the court house.

"The Federal regulations on employment of children in industries covered by the Fair Labor Standards Act and the Welsh-Healey Act are definite and must be followed if the employer is to avoid penalties," Mr. Garvin said. "There also are a number of state regulations pertaining to industry, as well as retail firms, and here again the penalties are drastic for use of child labor."

Short of Manpower
"The manpower situation is growing more acute each day and employers who are seeking to keep up their production through the use of younger workers, soon to be released from school, will profit greatly by attending this clinic. The Chamber of Commerce is bringing federal and state executives to Gettysburg for this clinic so that all employers will get a complete picture of all laws and regulations pertaining to employment of minors. School officials have been invited to attend and to discuss the issuance of employment certificates."

"Mrs. Valda Lyons Noll, child labor consultant of the Children's Bureau, U. S. Department of Labor, will head the list of speakers. Following brief talks by federal and state authorities, there will be an open forum period when employers may ask any questions pertaining to child labor laws."

L. C. Keefeauver, superintendent of Gettysburg schools, J. Floyd Slaybaugh, county superintendent of schools, and other school officials in surrounding areas, have been invited.

Mr. Keefeauver and Mr. Slaybaugh have been asked to attend so that they will be available to answer questions on issuance of employment certificates.

Let's give 'em another donation!

1923—was the year in which the most devastating earthquake of our time ravaged Japan. It was also the year that a sympathetic America rushed relief by the shipload to the stricken islands.

Our donation then included food, clothing, medicines—even doctors. They repaid us for this softhearted gesture, all right—at Pearl Harbor. And that was only the beginning of their gratitude!

1945—is a year for donation, too. The kind the war lords will understand. A gift of bombs and incendiaries. Of mighty broadsides from our battleships.

It's going to cost plenty to show those Japs we aren't the suckers they played us for. And that's where each and every one of us comes in for our share of the cost.

If you are to meet the quota Uncle Sam has set for you in his great 7th War Loan, it will mean sacrifice on your part.

Well, we've learned a lot since 1923. We've learned a lot about sacrifice . . . and war. The best way to get this business over with fast is to support our Forces to the limit of our ability with cash.

Remember—last year, by this time, you had twice bought extra Bonds. The Mighty 7th is really two loans in one; that's why it's bigger than before. Find out what your quota is . . . and make it!

NAVY EPIC

You can tell it to them, sailor, in the years that are to be,
You were one aboard the Franklin in that epic of the sea.
You've a right to boast about it; you were one who saved "Big Ben";
One who lived to tell the story of her glorious fighting men.

You can tell it to them, sailor, with a touch of Yankee pride,
You were one of those aboard her when that good ship almost died.
One below, or was it topside?—oh, it doesn't matter where—
You were one to give the Navy added glory, all can share.

When the youngsters gather round you, as they will when you're ashore,
You're a stirring tale to give them that will live forevermore.
You can tell them of the Franklin, under Japanese attack,
With the dead and maimed upon her, but the living fighting back.

To American tradition; aye, to Yankee faith and pride,
And the glory of the Navy, spread the story far and wide!
You've a right to boast about it till your breath is running short;
How you brought the battered Franklin, flag still flying, into port!

Today's Talk

VALUATIONS

Every day we unconsciously appraise life. And we appraise each day, each hour, in the same way. The proportion of our appreciation is measured by the valuation that we place upon these hours, days, months, and of life itself.

The careless, happy-go-lucky individual, with no set plan of life before him, and with no thoughtful plans, either for the hour, the day, or the month, certainly gains little out of his opportunity for service and happiness in this world. Valuations mean nothing to such a one.

There can be more genuine happiness in a simple hut than in the most elaborately furnished palace, if love is lacking in the latter, and not in the former. That little hut, without a single rug upon the floor, may have a greater valuation than the palace, with its floors strewn with priceless rugs.

Only the substantial and eternal are worthy of valuations. The father who bequeathes character to his children, leaves a legacy that is beyond purchase in terms of money. How foolish we are to bank on values that may be wiped out in a night! I owe a debt to a noble Father and Mother that can never be fully paid, but so long as I live I can make payments on that debt by whatever good I am able to render to others.

Reams of advertising material and large sums of money spent in a number of ways cannot make a bad book live. The good book needs none of this. A friend of mine paid over a thousand dollars recently for three fine English novels in their first editions. Ten dollars could have bought them all upon publication—had this anxious buyer been around to buy them at that time—when they were not appreciated. Their rarity now is occasioned by the fact that only a few bought them when they were unknown, or even long after they were known.

It's the valuation that we place upon our own abilities and character that measures our worth in the world. The words that we utter, the very look in our eyes, and the warmth of our hand and heart tell more to the stranger or newly met than a big volume of words—mere words.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "He Who Returns."

Canada is among the world's greatest producers of the common base metals.

Out Of The Past

From the Files of the

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO

Death of General Jackson: This distinguished citizen at last paid the debt of nature. That dread call, which has so long been looked for, came on Sunday, the 8th inst., at six o'clock in the evening. The funeral took place on Tuesday the 10th and was attended by a vast concourse of citizens.

A large portion of the American people have always deemed him in error in most of his measures of policy, during the period in which he administered the Government, yet no one would venture to deny his ardent patriotism, and deep and sterling devotion to the honor of his country during his eventful life.

Gen. Jackson, President of the United States from 1823 to 1836, returned to his beautiful home (the "Hermitage") where he continued to reside until his death.

He has no blood relation in this country—but few men have had a larger number of devoted friends.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
Dissolved.—Messrs. Cannon and Miller have dissolved partnership. Mr. Cannon having disposed of his interest in the marble-yard to his partner. Mr. Miller has the reputation of being a good workman and will doubtless sustain the reputation of the establishment.

Collector.—Jas. McCreary has been appointed Collector of State and County Taxes for the borough of Gettysburg; also Collector of School Taxes.

Full.—The Hotels of this place have been full to overflowing during the week, owing to the meeting of the Grand Lodge of Good Templars.

Good Time.—Our lively men have been enjoying a good time this week in hauling the strangers over the Battle-field.

Charles Dickens, the greatest of English novelists, died on Thursday the 9th inst., at his residence at Gadshill, near Rochester, England. He was at dinner on Wednesday and was seized with a sudden illness, which proved so alarming that eminent physicians were summoned from London, but his case was hopeless. Mr. Dickens' works have made him one of the most widely known and popular men in the world. His death will be regretted by a large circle of followers.

Good Templars.—The meeting of the Grand Lodge of the Good Templars organization of this state, during the present week, has made our town quite lively. About 350 delegates are in attendance. The sessions commenced on Tuesday and are still in progress. The Good Templars have become a power, bringing woman's potent influence actively to bear on the Temperance movement.

As the business of the Lodge was conducted in secret session, we are unable to give any of the proceedings.

During the week lectures were delivered in the evening in the different churches of the town to large and attentive audiences. The number of persons in attendance have been variously estimated at from 500 to 600. Erie City has been selected as their next place of meeting.

On the Track.—The Passenger Railway Car has made its appearance on the track and is running heavy loads to the Springs Hotel.

State Sunday School Convention: The State Sunday School Convention being held in Harrisburg this week, is attended by about 600 delegates. Among the delegates we notice the following credited to Adams county: J. George Wolf, of Abbotstown; D. W. Cassat, Hunterstown; Samuel Wolf, Oxford township; A. C. Musselman, Fairfield; Rev. M. J. Alleman, Littlestown; E. S. Breidenbaugh, Mrs. Prof. Croil, Miss Julia Jacobs, J. L. Kendeilhart, B. J. Hickman, Miss Anna Danner, T. J. Stahlke, J. A. Clutz and L. M. Hellman, of Gettysburg.

STAND UP AND TAKE IT EASY IN GARDEN WORK

The easier you take the job of cultivating, the better it is for your plants. A lazy gardener will never wait until the weeds grow big enough to see; it is so much easier to kill them in the sprout stage, by stirring the soil before they come to the surface.

This string should be done with a delicate touch; if you work hard at it, and dig deep, it will do more harm than good. Deep cultivating, which stirs the soil several inches deep, is definitely out for garden crops. Experiments have demonstrated that deeply stirred soil dries out faster, and that this form of cultivation, which is very hard work, is likely to disturb the roots of your vegetable plants, and do more harm than good.

The right way to cultivate is to

Not Too Late To Start Your Victory Garden Now

Too late to start a Victory garden? Not at all. Sowing of short season vegetables in the garden should not cease until it becomes too late for them to mature before winter.

Gardeners who begin early, should continue to make sowings of keep far enough away from the vegetables, so that you do not even disturb the roots which lie close to the surface, for these are the oldest roots and continue to play an important part in nourishing the plant, even when it grows large. And cultivate just deep enough—an inch or so—to break the soil crust and uproot the tiny white sprouts of weeds, which are just beginning to grow.

Cultivate After Rains
In normal times you might choose your cultivators from a great variety; some gardeners used to have as many cultivators as a golfer has clubs. Nowadays, you use what you can get, and it is good to know that the old fashioned goose-neck hoe is a most satisfactory tool for all cultivating tasks. If you need a hand cultivator, to use in the vegetable row or in small corners where a big hoe cannot function, then a putty knife makes a good one, if you cannot get a better.

Cultivate after every rain, when the soil has dried out enough to crumble. Begin cultivating as soon as your crops appear above the surface, and there is no reason why a weed should ever grow in your garden which requires to be pulled by hand. Except of course in the vegetable row itself. Here a few hours' work on your knees, pulling up the weeds, usually when you are thinning out the crop, will usually clean up the rows for the entire season.

Tomatoes in the Late Garden

Well rooted tomato plants should be set out within the next week for the late crop. June 20 is the safe transplanting date observed by most northern gardeners in this general latitude. And of course, the late crop is emphasized for canning, table use through late summer and early autumn, and marketing. Native to tropical regions, tomatoes demand warm weather for maximum growth, yet they are a valuable crop to bring into final production up until killing frosts arrive.

Tomatoes thrive in a wide range of soil types, providing the loam is deep and well drained. Plenty of organic matter is necessary to hold moisture and provide a mellow stratum of rooting soil. In most cases the late crop may be grown where an earlier and heavily fertilized vegetable has grown and in such locations the tomatoes need little additional fertilization.

The Marglobe, Rutgers, Greater Baltimore and Stone are among the widely grown varieties in this region for the late crop. It is important to determine the variety name when buying plants from commercial sources.

Pruning Tips

If space is limited in the small garden, plants may be set 20 inches apart in rows 3 feet wide and trained to individual stakes and their tops kept pruned to single or double stems by removing the suckers that appear at the base of the leaf stems. Staking and pruning not only save valuable space, but they pay handsome dividends when unusually wet weather occurs to endanger fruits likely to rot from direct contact with the ground. Too, staking and pruning reduces spraying costs and render harvesting labors easier.

Stakes should be about six feet tall, set firmly in the ground before transplanting time. Plants should be tied as growth develops, preferably with soft but strong twine to prevent the heavy tops breaking down. After three clusters of blooms appear and small fruits begin to set, pinch out the terminal bud to throw all the plant strength into full maturing of the smaller number of fruits.

If early frosts threaten before all the tomatoes are ripe, plants may be pulled up by their roots and hung in a shed or other building or the green fruits gathered and placed on a wooden foundation in a coldframe or hotbed pit and kept in darkness until needed for ripening by exposure to light. Of course, housewives find numerous roles for

Succession Crops Important In Garden

One of the secrets of successful vegetable gardening is to keep the soil busy throughout the growing season. Succession cropping is as essential as initial planting.

When an early crop is harvested, replace it with another to occupy part or all of the rest of the season.

For example, after early lettuce has been picked, set out tomato plants, and later in the season broadcast some spinach among the tomato plants. Or pea vines might be dug under to improve the soil in preparation for celery or some other late crop.

In rows where onions grew from sets, late spinach might be sown. In similar manner, late lettuce might follow early parsnips and late carrots might follow early spinach.

Snap beans may be planted after early beans have been harvested; peppers will grow in the same row used for early lettuce; and the rows devoted to early radishes may be used for late beets. Dig the plant tops under; they contain nitrogen, useful as a fertilizer.

County Agents Have New Spray Schedule For Fruit Gardeners

A new spray schedule for home garden fruits has been prepared by entomologists and plant pathologists of the agricultural extension services, for the benefit of those with only a few fruit trees, bushes or vines. The new schedule, available through county agents, has been prepared for use of the 3 to 5 gallon sprayers.

Preparation of the various sprays has been simplified to use teaspoons and cups for measuring the chemicals, instead of the intricate weight systems. Timing of the sprays has also been simplified to conditions of individual trees or plants, so that sprays can be applied according to development under local weather conditions, rather than calendar dates. Insect pests and seasonal diseases can be controlled through the new sprays, applied according to the schedule.

Let's talk "milk-cooling" for just a minute . . .

TIMES coming, maybe, when you'll be buying your milk cooler. That'll be a mighty important purchase, and it won't hurt to have a few facts about Esco.

It was Esco, you know, that designed and built the first patented milk cooler. And Esco has pioneered every major improvement in milk coolers ever since. Such things as the "icy wall" . . . the "constant neck-high water leveler" . . . the "circulator-agitator", all to cool milk better and faster, so it'll have a lower bacteria count, won't be rejected. Insurance, you might say, for your monthly milk check.

No matter what the future holds, you can be sure of this: Esco Milk Coolers, Esco Farm Freezers and Empire Milking Machines will be products of a company that has proved itself inventive, progressive, service-minded—a real leader in helping make farm life easier and more profitable.

U. S. Sub Runs

Darter took out in pursuit of the force. It was midnight and the submarine was running on the surface at a fast clip. The waters weren't too well known.

There was a terrific crash and men were slammed against machinery, the steel bulkheads and to the deck as the Darter smashed into a reef.

Immediately they went to work destroying confidential papers and charts. McClintock made a quick survey of the situation and it appeared hopeless.

They tried twisting, backing, sailing but the submarine was tight on the reef. What was worse, the tide was going out and in a short time the Darter was high and dry.

In friendly waters it might have been possible to save her, once the tide rose again. But this was Japanese water, as much as American, and there was no time to lose. Another submarine, under Comdr. B. D. Claggett of "The Inn," rancho Santa Fe, Calif., was nearby and came along to help.

Daring Rescue

"Claggett unhesitatingly risked his ship close aboard the reef to rescue the Darter's crew, remnants of which unquestionably would have been captured after their remaining ammunition was expended," said McClintock.

The Darter's crew made ready to abandon the ship. They destroyed their secret equipment and placed explosives to destroy the ship itself. Then they transferred to the other without the loss of a single man.

It was from there they could see the smoke pouring out of the Darter and could hear the explosions. Later in the morning a Japanese destroyer came close but it was not known whether they were able to board the Darter.

The Darter finally was destroyed by gunfire and torpedoes from other American submarines, but her crew and Commander McClintock came back to fight again.

$1-A-TON RISE IN HARD COAL PRICE IN FORCE AFTER 300 DAYS

Washington, June 18 (AP)—A $1-a-ton hike in the price of hard coal to householders became effective today to cover mine wage increases.

The ceiling increase, accompanied by price rises of 25 to 50 cents on industrial sizes of anthracite, was authorized by Economic Stabilizer William H. Davis Saturday night when he approved the new hard coal wage agreement.

The agreement, which followed a three-week work stoppage in May, was approved by the War Labor Board June 6. It carries a pay increase of 13.37 cents a day for 68,000 miners and lesser increases for 4,000 other anthracite workers.

Covers Labor Costs
OPA studies showed that an increase in coal prices averaging 75 cents a ton for both domestic and industrial users was necessary, Davis said. He asked OPA to report after the increase has been in effect three months on whether new changes will be required to keep operators' margins at legally established levels.

The price boost is intended to cover an increase in labor costs of 60.7 cents a ton, most of it going to pay the "portal to portal" travel time—won by the union headed by John L. Lewis.

Additional increase is necessary, Davis said, to bring the operating margin of coal producing companies up to the 19.9 cents a ton established as the target by the Office of Economic Stabilization in May, 1944. This deficiency was 5.2 cents a ton. Davis also held it desirable to let anthracite operators recoup a deficiency of 9.2 cents a ton incurred in the first five months of this year.

15 Polish Leaders Admit Sabotage

London, June 18 (AP)—Reuters reported from Moscow today that 15 of the 16 Polish underground leaders on trial pleaded wholly or partly guilty today to charges of sabotage behind Russian lines.

The Moscow radio said the poles had admitted that the Polish home army, which one of the defendants, Maj. Gen. Bronislaw Okulicki commanded, had been kept intact for eventual "armed struggle" against the Warsaw provisional government and the Red Army.

The Moscow radio said the Poles Gen. Bronislaw Okulicki, commander of the Polish home army, testified that he had received orders from the exiled Polish government in London "to preserve the home army in a condition of illegality."

Earlier Moscow had announced the 16 underground leaders had been indicted formally on charges of sabotage behind Russian lines.

CLARENCE SWISHER GROCERY Stevens Street Phone 345-W

Guam, June 18 (AP)—A Japanese field officer who held remnants of his command together for 10 months until he had become a symbol of resistance to them has surrendered with 33 of his men.

The officer made a formal surrender on a green hillside of this island as elements of a Marine battalion watched, slack-jawed.

Parleys between the officer and Marine Col. Howard N. Stent, Warner Springs, Calif., preceded the surrender, which was reported today as a fine example of American psychological warfare against holdout Japanese. (Date of the surrender was not given, but it presumably was some time this month. Guam was "secured" August 9, 1944.)

What About Japan?
The Japanese officer attended the parleys in an open area which was surrounded carefully by a Marine guard but he brought down his own well-fed appearing troops with him. As he talked, a subaltern wiped perspiration from his face and another fanned off the flies.

The Japanese said they had had plenty of food and water. They appeared fit despite their months in the jungle.

The first concern of the surrendering officer was his voiced query: "What is the future of Japan after victory?"

"That will depend a whole lot on the type of leadership that men of your intelligence give it," replied Stent.

"Not a Disgraceful State"
Clad in makeshift American service uniforms, including dungarees and jackets on which were stenciled the names of Marines from whom they had been stolen, the surrendering troops counted off briskly.

Then their commander, who was described by American officers as alert and intelligent, said:

"I am turning you over to Col. Stent. You will be treated well. You are now prisoners of war. It is not a disgraceful state and you are not to regard it as such."

Surrender of these 34 Japanese on the first populated territory retaken from the enemy in this war was interpreted as the end of all enemy activity on Guam.

Loaded Trolley Hit By Lightning

Pittsburgh, June 18 (AP)—Lightning struck a trolley carrying 21 passengers and hit electric wires, a barn, and several homes during a storm in southern Allegheny county yesterday.

Doctors treated the street car passengers, who received slight injuries crawling from shattered windows, at a home in Bethel township.

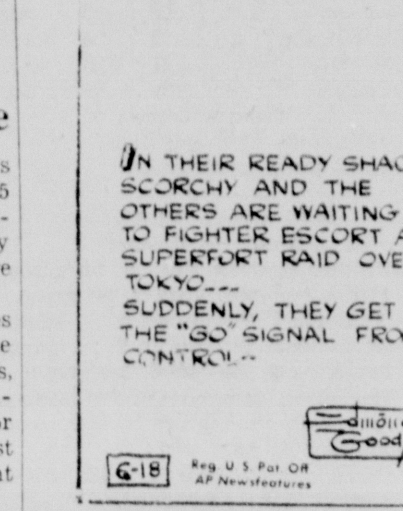

The Brookline, Mt. Lebanon and Dormont sections were without electricity for nearly an hour after a feed line at the South Hills substation of Duquesne Light Co., was hit. One barn burned to the ground.

BLONDIE

SCORCHY SMITH

POPEYE

Chapter 27
Kay's head ached and her heart was a dull void as she drove back to Lowell. She numbly pressed all thoughts of Rex Warner into the back of her mind. She had to see Ned McAllister.

She slackened the speed of the car, her thoughts and plans taking definite shape in her mind. Her shares of stock in the Lambert Mill could give Ned control if he'd buy. And the time had come when the destiny of Lowell should pass into other hands.

Kay began to cry in the gathering darkness. She pressed one hand over her mouth to keep back the painful sobs that tore her throat. She wept for all she was giving up in life, for her father's weakness, for her mother's life with him. "Oh, Mother," she whispered brokenly, "was there a cry in your heart all those years for what you missed? A cry hidden by the song on your lips? Darling—darling, was I any pleasure to you before you—went away and left me?"

Yes, Katherine would approve of her plan. Francis would agree bitterly with Lucia when his wife would say, "So—Kay has sold you out? Well, I'm not surprised."

What did Francis' opinion matter now? Kay was thinking. Suppose Josephine had not come to me? Suppose she had died in some horrible place in Atlanta? Suppose she'd killed herself? And if Josephine, why not other girls?

Kay parked her car in front of the mill. It was dark now, but she knew Ned would be in his office.

Ned was busy at his desk, but he stopped his work and looked with surprise at her pale face and shadowed eyes.

"Hello," he said. "You look tired."

"I am," she said, as she seated herself.

He looked at her more closely and his eyes fell upon the gleaming diamond on her left hand. "Having Jimmy trouble?" he asked, and then regretted his words. Everyone knew Jimmy was still being seen about with Lucia.

She smiled wanly. "No—Jimmy is Jimmy. And always will be."

"Then what's wrong?"

She was silent for a moment, and then she said, "Grandfather left me a good bit of stock in the mill. I want to sell it, provided you'll buy."

"Sell it?" he echoed. "Why, old Godfrey would turn over in his grave."

"I have a feeling that Godfrey would understand," she explained. "I need some money."

He looked at her closely. "Then surely Francis will give you the money, if it's so urgent." He paused and tried to read her thoughts. "Have you offered him the stock?"

"No, I don't want him to know about this until I'm gone—away."

Ned's voice was gentle. "You've been unhappy since Christmas. In fact, since Francis married. I'll lend you the money, Kay. How much do you need?"

She considered his offer, then shook her head. "I want you to

ONE ISSUE MAY DELAY CLOSING OF CONFERENCE

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER (Associated Press Diplomatic News Editor)

San Francisco, June 18 (AP)—Only one issue stands between the United Nations conference and adjournment, but that one, raised by Russia, may be enough to block the scheduled windup next Saturday.

Russia is demanding restriction of powers already formally proposed for the general assembly of the proposed world organization to discuss and make recommendations on any matter affecting international relations. Moscow wants this changed to cover only questions "relating to the maintenance of international peace and security."

Reopening this controversy has stirred anew small nation resistance to big power leadership in the writing of a United Nations security charter.

May Avoid Floor Fight

Foreign Minister Herbert V. Evatt of Australia has let it be known that he is considering re-opening other issues by starting a new fight against the big-five veto in the world security council.

Secretary of State Stettinius put himself, Evatt and Soviet Ambassador Andrei Gromyko on a special committee yesterday to work out a compromise on the Russian demand. Today he had to inform the conference executive committee that it had failed to do so. Gromyko, under instructions from Moscow, was unable to accept any compromise and could only report back to Moscow what was offered.

Confronted with a tight timetable which he intends to stick to if at all possible, Stettinius evidently hoped to avoid an open floor fight which might provoke debate and could end in defeat for Russia if the small nations lined up strongly behind Evatt. The next move was up to the executive committees.

Whirlwind Cleanup

But the week-end brought a whirlwind cleanup of other controversies that had been argued out over many days past.

1. A conference committee last night voted 23 to 3 (14 nations abstaining) to write into the charter authority for the proposed league either to expel or suspend members which violated its principles. The big powers had fought particularly for the expulsion clause.

2. This committee also approved 29 to 14 a Belgian plan that future amendments to the charter should become effective after being ratified by two-thirds of the United Nations, including all the Big Five. This means that any one of the Big Five could veto an amendment by refusing to ratify it.

3. Acceptance of a United States compromise cleared away another issue over amendments. This provides that if no new conference to revise the charter has been held by the end of its first 10 years, the assembly must consider calling one, and could decide to do so by majority vote. The committee approved this 33 to 1, with 11 nations, including Russia, not voting and four absent.

A committee voted 24 to 19 against writing into the charter a clause allowing any nation to withdraw its membership. The small nations had insisted on this right, but compromised on an informal committee statement which said that even without the express provision a nation could withdraw, particularly if some future change in the charter made it unacceptable to that nation.

DODGERS TAKE LEAGUE LEAD; PHILS WIN 2

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Those "ferocious gentlemen" from Brooklyn are in undisputed possession of first place in the National league today for the first time this season.

Chosen by baseball writers to finish near the bottom, the surprising Dodgers climaxed a great early June drive by bumbling Mort Cooper and the Boston Braves 9-6 in the opener of yesterday's scheduled double header to sweep past both Pittsburgh and New York. The Bucs and Giants are now tied for second place, one game behind.

In pitching the Dodgers to their ninth victory in the last 11 games, Hal Gregg gained the distinction of becoming the first hurler to take a decision from Cooper, who had won six straight. The victory was the ninth for Gregg, although he had to have help when the Braves rallied for three runs in the eighth.

The second game was halted by the Massachusetts 6:30 p. m. curfew law with the Braves ahead 4-1 after seven innings. The game will be completed in August.

The Pirates and Giants each dropped twin bills, the Pirates to the oncoming St. Louis Cardinals 7-0 and 6-2, and the New Yorkers to the last place Philadelphia Phillies 11-9 and 6-2.

Redbirds Gain

Ken Burkhardt blanked the Bucs with five hits in the opener, while Ted Wilks gave up the same amount of hits in the nightcap. The double triumph moved the fourth place Redbirds only a half-game behind the Bucs and Giants.

The lowly Phils surprised the Ottomans with a 16-hit outburst in the opener and continued their winning ways in the nightcap with the aid of a brilliant scoreless five-inning relief job by Anton Karl. Jim Wasdel paced the winners with two homers, one in each game to drive in five runs. Giant ace Bill Voiselle suffered his sixth straight setback in the afterpiece, following a string of eight triumphs.

The league leading Detroit Tigers took it on the chin twice from the Chicago White Sox 6-1 and 7-5, but retained first place in the American league, although their lead was cut to one and one-half games.

Veteran Thornton Lee won his eighth in the opener with a neat six-hitter, while Joe Haynes gained credit for his fifth in the nightcap, although he suffered a fractured leg sliding into third in the fifth frame.

Gains 11th Win

The New York Yankees and Philadelphia Athletics split. After Floyd Bevens won the opener for the Yankees 7-1 from Buck Newsum, the Mackmen's Russ Christopher notched his 11th triumph 4-2. The victory not only made Christopher the biggest winner in the majors, but gave him the unique distinction of downing more than half the total triumphs of the entire Philadelphia club (20).

Boston's rampaging Red Sox took two from Washington 2-1 and 7-1 to pull up within a game and a half of the second place Yankees. Emmett O'Neill outdueled Leonard in the opener, while George Melkovich paced the second game offensive with a single, double and triple off the Nats' Cuban hurler, Santiago Ullrich, making his first major league start.

A three-run rally in the ninth gave the Chicago Cubs their eighth victory over Cincinnati 3-1 in the opener of what was supposed to be a double header. The second game was postponed by rain as was the Cleveland St. Louis Browns twin bill. Harry Lowrey's single scored the tying and winning runs for the Cubs to give Paul Derringer, who had relieved starter Hank Wyse, his eighth triumph.

ALBANY TAKES EASTERN LEAD

(By The Associated Press)

Joe Valenzuela, Binghamton pitcher, has cracked his hard luck streak.

Valenzuela scattered seven hits yesterday as the Triplets edged Hartford 2-1 in an Eastern league contest. Two weeks ago he went the route in a 15-inning game only to see Elmira win 5-4. Last Sunday he pitched 13 innings against Scranton and had to be satisfied with a 1-1 tie.

Albany took over first place in the standings by defeating Utica 6-2 and 1-0. Williamsport moved into second after copping two from Scranton, 6-5 and 3-1. Wilkes-Barre won a doubleheader from Elmira, 8-3 and 5-4. The nightcap between Hartford and Binghamton was postponed because the diamond was not in condition for a doubleheader.

In the opener at Scranton, the Miners threatened to overcome a 6-2 Williamsport lead when, in the seventh, they scored two runs and had the tying and winning runs on base, all without a base hit.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, June 18 (AP)—Gordon Kirkland, Catawba college baseball coach, who made one appeal to Commissioner Happy Chandler to stop the "kidnapping" of young players by major league scouts, now is urging every high school and college coach to write the commissioner. . . . That would show unanimity, but it is doubtful whether it would do much good otherwise. . . . The high school boys probably will be safe once the older players come back from the war and it's up to the college coaches to show that they can give a boy a real baseball education while he's getting some book-learning too. . . . Kirkland points out that pro football has "co-operated" with the colleges, but the footballers have their draft system to prevent competition in signing players and they don't want to establish an expensive minor league system of developing material when the colleges can do it for them.

HOT SMOKES

Home runs really are worth while at Ebbets Field these days. . . . Every time sportscaster Red Barber sees the ball going over the fence, he tosses a carton of those cigarettes he advertises down the grandstand wire and when the hitter crosses the plate, the mascot mits him with the carton. . . . That's one way to get cigarettes—and also one way to get away with throwing things at those "ferocious gentlemen."

CHARITY COMES HOME

Three Baldwinville, N. Y., women bowlers who are among the 256,000 contributors to the "wings of mercy" campaign, get the thrill of a lifetime recently when Capt. Harley Loveless wrote to his mother: "Dear Mom, did you help buy the airplane that the Women's International Bowling congress donated to the army air force? If you did, your son has been flying a plane you helped to buy. It is called Miss Nightingale II, and it is a honey of an airplane." . . . The captain's mother, his wife and his sister all bowl on the same team.

REDBIRDS TAKE TWO OFF ROSES

(By The Associated Press)

The Allentown Redbirds swept both ends of a doubleheader, 3-2 and 12-11, from the Lancaster Red Roses, interstate league leaders, at Allentown last night. The Red Birds made it four games out of five in their series with Lancaster.

Frankie Lugos held the Roses to five hits in the first eight innings of the opener but suffered a heat attack in the ninth and retired to the side. George Koby took over. Allentown was able to bunch its blows off Pat Karpuck for the victory.

Trenton took a pair of games from the Hagerstown Owls, winning the first 6-4 and the second 14-10. In the opener the Spartans chased Bill Baskin to the showers in the eighth with a four run rally. In the nightcap Trenton scored eight times in the fifth inning on five hits, two bases on balls and three Hagerstown errors.

York Loses

The Wilmington Blue Rocks and the York White Roses divided their doubleheader at Wilmington. The Roses took the opener 3-6 and the Blue Rocks the nightcap 7-3.

Jim Patton scattered eight Wilmington hits to gain a shut-out in the nine-inning opener. The Rocks clubbed Al Reitsig and Ralph Domick for 17 hits to take the seven-inning final.

Wilmington defeated York 3-2 at Wilmington Saturday night. Hagerstown lost 8-7 to Trenton and Lancaster hammered three Allentown pitchers for 22 hits, including four home runs to defeat the Redbirds 19-7.

The 10th Mountain Division finished second with 22 points, winning only the 3,000-meter walk which John M. Huber, 39-year-old beel and toe specialist from East Orange, N. J., grabbed in 16:41.5.

NELSON WINS TOURNAMENT

Philadelphia, Pa., June 18 (AP)—Byron Nelson, Golfdom's most ardent bookkeeper, posted three more entries in his elaborate set of ledgers today after his triumph in the Philadelphia Inquirer's $17,500 invitation tournament.

The Toledo umbrella salesman finished with four consecutive birds yesterday to register a 63 that went into one book as a course record for the Llanerch Country club links.

The 269 that gave him a two-stroke lead over Harold (Jug) McCracken, served to reduce his average for his last six tournaments to 67.45 strokes per round and this was recorded in another ledger.

Then in the most important volume he listed the $3,333.33 paid to the winner of the links test played for the benefit of the Professional Golfer's association rehabilitation fund.

"The last entry is sure to go in the book," said Nelson with a laugh as he visited press headquarters following his latest triumph. His books now show entries of $27,948.33 for the season, ten tournament triumphs in 20 starts, and 13 of his last 14 rounds in better than 70 per round.

NEW COAL PRICES

Pittsburgh, June 18 (AP)—The OPA announced new ceiling prices on soft coal effective today in the Allegheny county area. They include $6.44 per ton for highest grade screened lump, $5.64 for run of mine, $5.04 for nut and $4.89 for slack, plus service charges.

The first broadcast of music was on Oct. 17, 1919, when Dr. Frank Conrad placed his homemade microphone before a phonograph.

New York, June 18 (AP)—Defeat of Hoop, Jr., the Kentucky derby winner, and Pavot, the 1944 juvenile champion, in the Preakness at Pimlico on Saturday has left the three-year-old racing picture in a jumbled state.

What will happen next Saturday in the $50,000 Belmont stakes, last of the triple crown events, is probably as much a mystery to turf writers as to the horses themselves.

The situation is such that no one would be surprised if William Helis made a last minute decision to have his $66,000 bounty, Pericles, make his first start in the rich Belmont fixture.

Mrs. P. A. B. Widener's Poly-nesian, who earned $66,170 in beating Hoop, Jr., by 2½ lengths and Pavot by five, is not eligible for the Belmont. Neither is Mrs. W. G. Lewis' Darby Dieppe, who ran third in both the Derby and the Preakness.

In addition Hoop, Jr., owned by Fred W. Hooper, pulled up lame in the Preakness and may not start while trainer Ben Jones may decide to keep Warren Wright's Pot O'Luck at Washington park in Chicago instead of shipping him east for the grueling mile and one-half route. Col. C. V. Whitney's Jeep, who failed in the derby, may stage a comeback in the Belmont.
